‘China’ is one of the most critical points of contention in the contemporary global society. It is a pillar of the newly inaugurating bipolar system in Asia-Pacific region. <China and WTO Review: CWR> has been launched as an academic forum for the very purpose of discussing changing international relations from the perspective of trade law and policy. The Review is dedicated to addressing contemporary questions of importance on China and the World Trade Organization.

This first issue of CWR encompasses eminent academic papers and case reports comprehensively analyzing relevant issues in a wide range of areas such as Transparency Standards in International Investment Agreement, Compliance Procedures in Trade Dispute Settlement, and ‘Contemporary Meaning’ in Treaty Interpretation in the WTO cases. It is also publishing the recent WTO dispute settlement case 440 and two reports on China’s position regarding trade issues in the WTO and the Korea-China FTA.

<China and WTO Review> is delivered under the auspice of leading academics and practitioners in the field of international trade and economic law from both China and the rest of the world. Without their coalition, devotion and sacrifice, CWR would never have seen the light of day. I deeply appreciate their warmhearted cooperation. The Review will be published semi-annually. Submissions will be accepted on a rolling basis. CWR is an internationally referred academic law journal; each volume thus undergoes a vigorous peer review selection process. The drafts containing provocative, timely and creative legal and policy ideas on China and WTO will be preferred. More details may be found at: <http://cwr.yiil.org>
